To Whom It May Concern,

This is to certify that Mr. Chow Cheuk Him (Benson) has successfully completed an internship at dRoW Limited.

During this period, he was involved in the research of finetuning an optical character recognition (OCR) program for document reading and started the development of a document storage system. Benson built a web application that enables users to upload, search, and analyse PDF documents, integrating advanced AI models for document parsing and natural language processing. He implemented features such as automated document indexing, search functionality using Qdrant, and generating conversational summaries from document content.

We found Benson to be reliable, hardworking, and a quick learner. The skills gained during this internship—including Python programming, web development with Flask, and practical experience with AI and OCR technologies—will be valuable in his future career.

We wish Benson the best in his future endeavours.

Sincerely,

Ir Chun Keung Ng
CEO
